- How Clean Are Addiction & Drug Rehab Facilities In Indiana

As the world battles a pandemic, it is only natural to worry about the hygiene of places we visit. If you are attending or looking to attend an addiction and drug rehab facility in Indiana, it makes sense to ask how clean the facilities are.

Fortunately, rehabs are required to follow certain protocols to ensure their facilities are clean and safe for their patients.

Upholding Cleanliness Standards in Indiana Rehabs

Attending a substance abuse treatment facility such as Evolve Indy in Indiana means that you'll have to live in a group environment, even if you're in an outpatient program. These rehab centers are required to uphold high standards of hygiene and are often inspected by city inspectors to ensure this is done.

Rehabs usually have a cleaning crew on hand to take care of any cleaning duties. They also use special cleaning solutions to get rid of any bacteria or pathogens that accumulate in group living conditions. Each rehab has its own cleaning protocol and routine but most are cleaned daily. This includes mopping the floors, chairs, bathrooms, and other rooms in the facility.

Additionally, food and safety inspectors regularly visit rehab facilities in Indiana to ensure that food preparation areas are clean and that safety protocols are followed when preparing meals for everyone at the center. This helps keep people safe from foodborne illnesses.

Sharing Facilities in Rehab

As you go through your recovery journey, you may progress from residential treatment to partial hospitalization then to an intensive outpatient program. This means that at some point, you may have to be accommodated at a rehab facility.

In this case, you can either opt for semi-private or private rooms. In the former, you'll have to share a room and bathroom with your roommate. You'll both share the responsibility for keeping the room and bathroom clean and you'll have to clean up after yourselves.

If you opt for a private room, you'll have your own bathroom and room. In this case, you'll be required to do some light housekeeping to keep both the room and bathroom neat and tidy. This includes making the bed, putting any dirty laundry in the laundry bin, and keeping your clothes and items neatly away. Doing this helps you establish good habits while in recovery.

Don't Wait Another Day

Here at Evolve Indy, we take cleanliness seriously and do everything we can to ensure that our patients live in a clean and healthy environment. This way, they'll be free to focus on their recovery.
